

NEWARK BICENTENNIAL HEARING

ETHNICITY and RACE

Newark has been selected as one of six cities in the country where the American Catholic Church will conduct congressional-style hearings on social justice as a vital part of the Church's Bicentennial observance. For three days a panel of Bishops will hear nationally known speakers as well as members of the local community. The open process will solicit candid public testimony on problems, opinions, needs and directions for future church policy and action.
